PRIMARY TIMES: WHY IT CAN WORK FOR YOU

Primary Times in Avon is a magazine for parents, pupils and teachers in the primary school sector across Bristol, Bath, South Glos, North Somerset and BANES. It is primarily a 'what's on and where to go family guide', with editorial covering local and educational issues.

Published seven times a year at the start of each half- and full-term holiday, with a special 'Back To School' issue in September, it's delivered directly to 4-11 year olds, teachers and parents in 95% of state primary schools. In all, 72,000 copies are distributed for free, giving a potential readership of 252,000, and copies remain in readers' homes for several weeks after publication. We get huge amounts of positive feedback from teachers, parents and children - who contribute paintings and jokes - and we've lost count of the number of parents who've said: 'Primary Times saved my life this holiday.'

No other publication can offer advertisers repeated exposure to the family market at such competitive rates.

Why not cycle to school?

Bike To School Week runs from May 5-9 and aims to encourage children to cycle more often. Below, Harry Mottram reflects on why children don't cycle to school, while opposite, the Bike Week is explained.

I've often asked my children why they don't cycle to school. The answer is always the same: A kind of embarrassed shrug. They have backpacks, helmets and seatbelts. The journey to school is about ten miles along a road cycle track. It's not my fault. Little, who managed to discover why they preferred to share a lift with a friend, walk to catch the bus, peer pressure.

Apparently, cycling isn't cool. Plus, they seem to get embarrassed at their school due to peer security. This may or may not be true, but it's enough for them to not go with their bikes. This is something of a tragedy, as they first started to ride everyone within about three miles of school cycles.

There were still maintained in the town of school cycles. I actually had them when I was looking through the various schools. I was asked to cycle to school. It was seen like parents are asking to school, completely irrelevant and unnecessary. In my experience, it greatly depends on the school and the attitudes of the staff as to the safety plan on their side and the message to the side. Perhaps, more importantly, it's more to do with the parents of children and their attitude. Sadly, many people

Bike To School Week, May 5-9

Teachers in schools across the UK have reported that pupils who walk or cycle to school are more alert and concentrated than those who travel by car. A recent US study showed a positive link between physical activity and performance in school tests.

This cycling project is an excellent way to get your pupils fit and healthy. Developing a formal school cycling policy, possibly as part of a school travel plan, will get your pupils off to a great start.

Be what should happen in a school's cycling policy?

Here is a checklist of things you need to think about:

Cycle Permit schemes: This should set out the rights and responsibilities of cyclists and their parents, when an existing permit is not available on a helmet case.

Cycle storage: Pupils need to be able to store their bikes safely. This could be as simple as providing a secure area for bikes to be stored, or providing a secure storage facility where pupils who cycle can have helmets, lights and safety clothing.

Training: Cycle training must be part of any strategy to get more children cycling to school. There's only one way to get more children cycling to school. That's by getting them to cycle to school. A cycle training policy may require pupils to get their bikes checked for roadworthiness before bringing them to school. One way of encouraging pupils to look after their bikes properly is to offer cycle maintenance classes at school and make an area of the school available for cycle repairs. Children of 11 and 12 should not be made to carry out their own repairs.

Car parking: Cutting the number of parking spaces around the school gates can improve safety and encourage cycling. If you need the support of your local authority,

It's not just small changes in our everyday lives that can make big differences to children's safety. It's the big changes that will make the biggest difference to children and young people's safety. For a parent or guardian, this could mean driving more slowly in areas where children are out playing, getting their gas boiler serviced, or making household repairs where a young child can reach them. For a young child, this could mean staying at the back of the road when crossing the road, being on the lookout for checking that the smoke alarm is working or remembering not to connect electrical sockets in their room.

The organisation has a wealth of information, ranging from facts to safety advice.

Children's safety is a top priority for the police in order to help lower the figures for child accident deaths and injuries.

A free Child Safety Week resource pack is now available for parents and teachers. It can be ordered by calling 0800 181 430 or by visiting www.aa.org.uk (accessed under the AA Safety About Homeless Pets, Child Accident Prevention Fund, 2007, 2008, 2009, 2010, 2011, 2012, 2013,
